KRYs GLOBAL ASSET RECOVERY PROFESSIONAL IS AWARDED CSAR CERTIFICATION AFTER PASSING RIGOROUS EXAMINATION

George Town, Grand Cayman (20 December 2011) • Kenneth M. Krys, Founder and CEO of KRYs Global, is among a select group of professionals to pass the Certified Specialist in Asset Recovery certification examination. Mr. Krys has now earned the privilege of using the prestigious designation CSAR, or Certified Specialist in Asset Recovery.

The CSAR credential is earned by individuals who pass a four-hour examination that provides a tough and objective measure of mastery of the challenging field of international asset recovery. The certification program is administered by the International Association for Asset Recovery (IAAR), the premier membership organization of professionals in the field worldwide. The CSAR certification is compelling evidence that designees are competent and knowledgeable in asset recovery regardless of their professional specialization.

"For the successful candidates, the CSAR designation is powerful evidence of highly specialized expertise that is recognized and welcomed by law firms, corporations, courts, peers, government agencies, and clients," said Charles A. Intriago, the president and founder of IAAR and a former US federal prosecutor.

To date there are approximately 50 individuals with the CSAR certification worldwide, and only three of which are located outside of the United States. Mr. Krys, being one of those three, is the only individual known to currently hold the certification in the Caribbean.
